Howard Phillips Lovecraft

AS HIS WIFE REMEMBERS HIM

BY SONIA H. DAVIS

IN her intimate story written especially for the Providence Sunday Journal, Sonia H. Davis—Mrs. Lovecraft from 1924 to 1929—sheds considerable light on a personality about which there has been much mystery and speculation.

Here, for the first time, is the fascinating story of Howard Phillips Lovecraft, Providence eccentric, semi-recluse and horror story writer until his death in 1937, whose posthumous fame has become international, and whose collection of weird tales now brings high prices in the rare book markets.
